Tea Party foes don't get lawmaker to change election policy

Some members of local Tea Party groups rallied against state Rep. Todd Smith in this year's Republican primary. The Euleless incumbent beat challenger Jeff Cason and now faces Democrat John Schleeter in November.

Smith felt some of that opposition pop up again last week while at a local Republican group's event when he was asked whether he would support former state Rep. Bill Zedler's bid against state Rep. Chris Turner, D-Burleson. Smith said he wouldn't campaign against any House incumbents, regardless of party.

"Many of our Tea Party members campaigned against him in the primaries, and here's just one reason why," wrote Julie McCarty of the Northeast Tarrant Tea Party in an e-mail to supporters.

Smith said he's keeping the same position he has held for years.

"I strongly and only endorse Republican candidates," Smith said in an e-mail. "I do not get involved in races against sitting legislative colleagues — period. This policy has served me well in advancing on the House floor the legislative interests of the people of Hurst-Euleless-Bedford."

EULESS - A Watauga man was in custody Thursday, accused of driving a vehicle that hit and killed a pedestrian on a highway in Eules. Suspect's girlfriend tips off police in fatal hit-and-run in Eules

Friday, September 24, 2010

By CRAIG CIVALE / WFAA-TV

Police in Eules have arrested a suspect in the hit-and-run death of a man who was struck and killed Wednesday night.

Christopher Holland was being held in the death of 58-year-old Richard Neal, who was run over while walking home from work late Wednesday.

Holland's girlfriend, Betty Moffett, told police she was unaware of what had happened until Holland arrived at their apartment in a panic.

"He just said something bad had happened. 'I can't tell you; I can't tell you. This is bad,' and he prayed and he cried last night," Moffett said. "He was scared; I didn't know why."

Moffett didn't learn what was wrong until Thursday morning when she tried to go to work, but her Jeep Cherokee was missing. She found it wrecked at a nearby gas station.

"I didn't notice until this morning that my windshield was busted," Moffett said. "My girlfriend pulled out and saw a shoe under my truck, and then I knew something had happened."

Police said that shoe belonged to Neal, who was walking home from a Taco Bell restaurant where he had worked for the last 15 years.

Friends said Neal had arthritis and used a cane, but made the half-mile trek every day along the busy stretch of West Eules Boulevard.

"His face was crushed a little bit, bleeding pretty bad," said Jarron White, one of Neal's closest friends and one of the first at the accident scene. "Laying on his back, some of his belongings were scattered around him."

Neal made his neighbors and even customers like Adrian Galvan feel important.

"Every time I go up there, he would ask what I'm doing. 'Everything all right? Going to school?' Cool stuff like that," Galvan said. "He actually cared about the people he was tending to, just a cool dude."

Saviano's Italian restaurant to open location in Fort Worth's Sundance Square

by PegNews wire

Friday, September 24, 2010

FORT WORTH — Saviano's, a family-owned and operated Italian restaurant, will open its second North Texas location in Sundance Square in space vacated by Zippy's All American Grill and Sammy's Pizza and Pasta. Saviano's will be housed in more than 4,400 square feet at 400 Houston Street.

"Saviano's will be a wonderful addition to Sundance Square with its classic Italian fare and New York style pizza," said Johnny Campbell, CEO and president of Sundance Square. "It will offer a great price point for diners during lunch and dinner which is always something we consider when introducing a new restaurant."

Saverio "Sal" Alfieri, along with his two sons, Giacomo and Anthony, will oversee day-to-day operations. The family imports their core ingredients such as olive oil, pastas, and parmesan cheeses from Italy to create authentic cuisine.

In 1978, Alfieri and his brothers opened the first Saviano's restaurant in New York when Sal was just 17 years old. His brothers continue to oversee the restaurant. The family opened a Euless location in 1994, where Jack and Anthony learned the ropes under their father's guidance. Sal and his sons will run both operations in North Texas.

"Cooking is a way of life for our family and we enjoy sharing Italian comfort food at a great value with our friends and guests," said Alfieri. "My parents came to the United States from Italy in the 1950s and they taught my brothers and I to carry on the traditions from the old country. We are very blessed to have the opportunity to open a new location in Sundance Square. It is the perfect environment for our restaurant."

Saviano's interior will be warm and inviting with a cozy bar. A patio opening onto Houston Street will allow guests to take advantage of the beautiful Texas afternoons and evenings.

Earlier this month, Frankie's Sports Bar announced it is expanding operations into Sundance Square. The new 8,000 square foot restaurant and bar will be located on the ground floor of The Carnegie, a 16-story office building that opened in 2008 at 421 West Third Street, across from the Fort Worth Central Library.

Cheers and Jeers

Cheers: To the Eules Fire Department, public works and city officials who were quick to respond to the victims of flooding in Trailwood, bringing pumps, helping hands and encouragement. Thank you also for taking the time to make safety checks in those homes. To live here really is FabEules!
